SAN CARLOS GOING AHEAD

An interview with P. J. Bell, manager of the San Carlos central mill, appears in a late issue of the Manila Gleaner-American, from which it appears that work is being pushed on the erection of houses for labor, clearing the ground for the mill buildings and constructing the railroad.

The mill buildings will be of steel throughout and will have a ground area of 54,000 square feet, the main buildings being three stories high. They will be fabricated in the eastern states and shipped direct to San Carlos from New York. The machinery and buildings will be furnished by the Honolulu Ironworks and will be first class in every particular, everything being designed along the most modern lines.

The ultimate capacity will be 1000 tons of cane per 24 hours, from which will be extracted 96 per cent of the sugar content.

"We are going to operate this central on a strictly mutual contract basis," Mr. Bell said. We do not intend to become planters at all but will remain strictly a milling company, taking for our share of the bargain less sugar from the planters than they are now with the old process system burning up under their kettles. Not only are we giving them more sugar from their cane but we are also giving them a 96 per cent sugar clear of caramel against a low grade sugar that already has no market with the refiners so long as there is a visible supply of 95 per cent sugar.

"They are also saving every centavo of expense for milling, which is quite an item when you consider labor conditions during the harvesting season."

Mr. Bell spoke of opposition from parties having only selfish interests. The central would give the producer a fair deal, free of exactions by middlemen. Mr. Bell said:

"Modern methods in manufacturing sugar mean a better product, a sugar that the world wants, that the refiner wants and when we arrive at a time when we can produce an attractive amount of this we shall have buyers at the spot offering cash for our sugars as other countries now have, for selfish reasons some people do not want this."

They could not blame the refiner for not wanting Philippine sugar now the old way of boiling in an open kettle. It could not be made into a pure white sugar such as the American consumer wanted, "Japan," said Mr. Bell, "passed and enforced a law prohibiting the manufacture of open kettle sugar. She was looking out for her future market when she began to export some sugar to Canada. This year Canadian refiners have already tried to contract for the coming Formosan crop. The Philippines are destined to be a mighty sugar producing country and I know that the central mill is the surest and quickest agent to bring about her development and the one agent that will distribute the profits where they rightfully belong."

A sale of 300 shares of San Carlos stock at par in Honolulu yesterday is reported.

BULL MOOSER NOW IN THE TAFT FOLD

Before the Presidential primaries in this State Hanna was an ardent supporter of Roosevelt and was the nominal head of the Roosevelt movement in this State. Since the launching of the third party and Roosevelt's attitude on the question of the third party State ticket in North Dakota Hanna's attitude toward the former President was in doubt, but he settled it today by saying that he would support Taft.
